

Description & Eligibility

Contestants will research a workplace-related topic and present their findings in a professional report and oral presentation. Submissions should demonstrate strong research skills, clear communication, and evidence-based recommendations. Any secondary division contestant may enter this judged event. Contestants must be registered for the national competition before the submission deadline and compete in both parts of the event to be ranked. Entries that do not follow the provided topic or the Copyright and/or Fair Use Guidelines and Artificial Intelligence Usage & Citation Policy will be disqualified.

Topic

Research how administrative support professionals are uniquely vulnerable to workplace stress and burnout due to the high-demand, multi-tasking nature of their roles. Explore the organizational and personal strategies that can promote wellness, resilience, and long-term career sustainability.

Considerations

- Causes and warning signs of burnout specific to administrative support roles
- Impact of burnout on productivity, accuracy, and overall workplace culture
- Organizational wellness programs, policies, and employer responsibilities
- Ergonomics, physical workspace design, and their effects on employee well-being
- Mental health resources and support systems available in the workplace
- Skills for setting professional boundaries and managing workload effectively
- Global and cultural considerations in workplace wellness practices
- Recommendations for both employers and administrative professionals to prevent burnout

Contestant Must Supply

- Students may use one single-sided laptop, notebook, or tablet for their presentation. Projection equipment and external displays will not be provided or permitted.

Contest Notes

- Method of evaluation: judged
