State Final Scenario:

Professional Business Associates had a recent opening for a payroll specialist in the finance department. As a recruitment tool, the company used LinkedIn to search for potential candidates based on having a two-year business degree with accounting experience or a bachelor's degree in finance. Several candidates were identified but Kaitlyn Brown stood out because of her bachelor's in finance degree and her experience working in the business field. She quickly became a well-liked and reliable part of the PBA team.

Several months after her hire, it was discovered that Kaitlyn had never completed her bachelor's degree after having failed three classes.
