JOB 1 – Letter

Key the following letter using your Style & Reference Manual. Correct any spelling and punctuation errors you find.

This letter is to Sandy Johnson, Branch Manager from the California office of Digital Solutions at 544 Office Plaza, San Diego, CA 92101 from Mr. Tom Carlson. Please copy the Human Resources Head of PBA. (Note: Reference the Style & Reference Manual for name of Human Resource Department Manager.)

I am writing this letter to propose a new product sales plan in line with the company's plans of innovation and to improve its sales performance.

In brief, this sales proposal presents that the company should do away with its previous plans and strategies in marketing two of the existing products: CR8 digital software and XTP digital software and instead adopt the following replacement products CR9 digital software and XTP version 3.0. This change will allow the company to achieve its targeted sales quota of 65% every month.

We have scheduled a virtual conference to take place on April 8, 2022 at 10 a.m. to discuss the implementation of these products and to roll out a strategic marketing plan. Roger Meyer will be sharing that plan with you prior to that date in preparation for our meeting. Please let me know if you have any questions or specific information you would like addressed at the meeting so we can prepare it ahead of time.

Thank you for your attention to this proposal and I look forward our upcoming meeting.

JOB 2 – Report

Key the following report using your Style & Reference Manual. Correct any spelling and punctuation errors you find.

The following is a report on career in international business should be titled Careers in International Business and Industry. Sent to Roger Meyer by Julie Smith.

There are many types of careers in International Business. Executives and managers direct all or part of the activities of an organization. Top level executives establish policies and make important decisions. Middle-level managers carry out those policies and decisions. As an administrative assistant you would work with both levels of managers.

There are many types of management positions in exporting and importing. An export manager is in charge of export operations while an export sales manager is the person who locates trading partners. The export credit manager takes care of credit arrangements with global customers. He or she works closely with the banks.

Import managers are responsible for bringing products or raw materials into the country from other countries. They are called import buyers.

Management positions in international business often require an MBA (Masters of Business Administration and many years of domestic experience in a specialized area such as marketing, banking, finance, production, or human resources. In order to advance in a company it may be necessary to have this degrees.

Some companies have an international division to handle all overseas business operations. Export management and trading companies handle exports for companies that do not have their own international operations.

MARKETING

Marketing provides consumers with products and services they want in addition to attracting new customers to existing products. People engaged in marketing are doing things like product design, advertising, promotion and packaging, sales, distribution and market research. The difference in international marketing is that the targeted consumer is from another country or culture.

PURCHASING

Many companies purchase parts and supplies from global suppliers in order to keep the prices of their products competitive. Anyone who works in international purchasing must locate suppliers of parts and raw materials. An import manager handles most of these responsibilities.

PRODUCTION

International production involves producing a product or component in another country. If you worked in product, you would need to understand joint venture, filing patents overseas and the transfer of technology.

HUMAN RESOURCES

All companies that engage in international operations hire, fire, train and evaluate employees including those who work overseas. In human resources, decisions are made about which employees to send on special assignments overseas and who should be responsible for training and preparing employees for overseas assignments. A company might employ an international specialist who has expertise in the culture of the country and business practices to help out with that.

JOB 3 – Memo

Key the following memorandum using your Style & Reference Manual. Correct any spelling and punctuation errors you find.

This memo is to Edna Renick and you are keying it for Julie Smith. The Chief Executive Officer will need to be copied in. Subject is new hire data. Create a table for the new hire data and title the sections name, title, department.

As we start a new quarter, I want to share information on our new hires for our branch office in each of our departments. As we follow this growth trend and continue to bring in new people it will be important for us to make sure we have a solid tracking system for including them on our weekly training calls and meetings. Please schedule the following into the appropriate trainings.

Sally Olson, Joseph Stall and Reanna Jones, Software Engineer in the Information technology area. Cindy Smith, Computer application specialist in Administrative Support Department, Roger Englested, Insurance benefits clerk for Human Resource department. Marsha Owens, Spreadsheet specialist for the Financial Service Department.
