STATE FINAL KEY SCENARIO:

Abbie is an entrepreneur with very creative business ideas. Although her businesses don't always work out, she keeps trying to find the winning idea that will make her a success. In the meantime, she works as a website designer at Digital Solutions to supplement her income. Last year, Abbie opened another new side business called Abbie + Company in which she helps businesses with their marketing strategies. She recently decided to add website design to her list of services.

One of Abbie's coworkers at Digital Solutions, Patrick, overheard her on the phone with a client to whom she provided a quote for business consulting services including website design. When Patrick asked her about it, Abbie stated that she can provide the website design service for less through her personal business, so she talked the customer into purchasing a marketing consulting package from Abbie + Company. On another occasion, a client of Abbie's personal business came to her office at Digital Solutions to meet about his marketing plan. When Patrick asked Abbie again about these interactions, she threatened to report him for harassment if he were to tell anyone. Abbie continued to email and text Patrick reminding him of her threat.

Aside from the personal threats, Abbie's coworker feels that she is not only using her position at Digital Solutions for personal gain, but she is also not fulfilling her employment obligations to Digital Solutions.
