STATE FINAL SCENARIO:

You've recently been promoted to a well-paying job in human resources at Digital Solutions. One of your key responsibilities is to log each store's time clock records into a spreadsheet. After working in this position for a few months, you notice that it appears that minors are working too late at night, working during school hours, and working too many hours per day. You know this is in violation of child-labor laws and state regulations.

- What are your next steps and why?
- Is it ethical for employers to treat employees differently based on their age?
- How will your decision(s) impact the company and the employees involved?
- What, if any, company ethics policies are involved in this scenario?
