Jessica uses several forms of social media marketing to advertise her channel to potential new viewers, including Twitter, Instagram, Facebook, and TikTok. For nearly all the ads she produces, Jessica utilizes her Canva Pro account, due to her lack of graphic design experience and ease of use. Many of her ads come directly from Canva templates. Canva has recently sent a cease-and-desist letter to Jessica requiring her to stop using Canva templates to market her channel, because doing so breaks Canva's terms and conditions. Upon further investigation, Jessica discovers that Canva is correct, and their terms and conditions require anything made on their platform for profit to be "creatively, and fundamentally different than that of our templates." Jessica does not have the time to gain additional training in graphic design but wants to continue using Canva in accordance with their terms and conditions. Jessica feels as though hiring an employee to do this work would be excessive due to the number of posts created for various social media platforms but does not want to devote the time to creating a digital ad that may look unsavory due to her limited graphic design skills. How would you advise Jessica to solve the problem without hiring additional personnel?

INITIAL CASE STUDY TOPIC:

Jessica Smith owns and operates a limited liability company where she is paid to be a social media influencer. She has an active YouTube channel with about 85 million subscribers. She utilizes the channel to make videos about the perks and cons of living in New York City, as well as travel for both those who live within the city and those who plan to visit the city. Her YouTube channel is named Jess In NYC, and her subscribers help her earn about $12,000 (gross) a month. Her main income for the business comes from ad revenue generated by her subscribers and paid by YouTube. Jessica is currently a one-woman show, and spends the majority of her day filming, editing, and posting to her YouTube channel. She also tries to carve out at least half an hour each day responding to subscriber emails and comments on her posts. Due to the fact her business has no employees, her expenses are relatively low for the business. She currently pays herself a salary of $100,000, leaving the extra to reinvest into the business; however, she has only been doing this for about one year. Jessica is wanting to expand her business but is unsure of what ways would be most successful and/or cost effective. Jessica is also interested in bringing on some additional employees to aid in the support and growth of her business. Jessica's primary focus is creating additional value for subscribers while maximizing revenue and growth for the business. Jessica is concerned about the potential time expanding the business would cause and needs solutions that provide growth to the business while prioritizing her time and effort.

One key fear Jessica has when attempting to grow the business is causing subscribers to feel as though she is only catering to the revenue customers bring in, instead of seeing them as a part of the community she has built around her channel. Jessica wants to find ways to grow the business and increase revenue in ways that prioritize customer/subscriber engagement. Create a presentation detailing the ways that Jessica can grow her business without alienating customers. Share insights to current industry trends, financial implications, and human resources requirements.
