STATE PRELIMINARY KEY SCENARIO:

Tina, employed as a Small Business Liaison in the Marketing Department of Digital Solutions, has been observed violating the company vehicle policy on multiple occasions. Over the past few months, several reports have been received including the following violations:

- Personal Use of Company Vehicle: Tina has been spotted using a company vehicle for personal purposes, including running personal errands such as grocery shopping during work hours, and using it for non-work-related activities on weekends. Witnesses have reported her using a company vehicle to transport personal items, such as furniture and bicycles, and transporting her friends and family to various entertainment activities during the weekends.
- Failure to Report Accidents: On two occasions, Tina was involved in minor accidents while recklessly driving the company vehicle at excessive rates of speed. During the last accident, she suffered minor injuries to her wrist in addition to denting the vehicle's front bumper. Instead of promptly reporting the incidents and filling out the appropriate company accident reports, Tina attempted to conceal the damages by making unauthorized repairs and visiting an out-of-town medical walk-in clinic.
- Vehicle Maintenance: Tina has neglected regular vehicle maintenance, such as oil changes and tire rotations, leading to increased wear and tear on the company vehicle and potentially jeopardizing the vehicle's warranty.
