STATE PRELIMINARY SCENARIO:

Digital Solutions is a medium-sized technology firm that develops and sells software, hardware, and services. Angela, a new hire in the Financial Services Department, accidentally sends an email containing sensitive client information to their personal email address instead of their work email. The email includes detailed project plans, financial data, and client contact information. Upon realizing the mistake, Angela panics and attempts to delete the email from her personal account. However, her attempt is futile as the action is discovered during a routine security audit conducted by the IT Department. The breach was reported to upper management, causing concern about potential data leakage and damage to client trust.
